John P. Holdren wins 2001 Heinz Environmental Award

It was announced on February 5th, 2001 that Dr. John P. Holdren Visiting Distinguished Scientist, The Woods Hole Research Center has received the 2001 Heinz Award in Public Policy.

Dr. Holdren, Distinguished Visiting Scientist and trustee of The Woods Hole Research Center, member of the President's Committee of Advisors on Science and Technology, trustee of the MacArthur Foundation, and distinguished professor at Harvard University, will be recognized for his far-reaching contributions to such complex issues as arms control, sustainable development and global energy resources.

The Heinz Awards pay tribute to the memory of H. John Heinz III by celebrating those who embrace, as he did, the joyous American belief that individuals still have both the power and the responsibility to change the world for the better.
